

Gender Education

by Nishaun Smith

What is love but a child of parenting. Parenting is a word that has been greatly misunderstood. For a while now things like math or science have been preached in schools. Constantly the wise men of society have taught of the importance of theologies like evolution and sex education, etc. It is incredibly strange that no one has ever thought of the importance of teaching parenting in schools, except to young girls who are already mothers. Is the scientific community scared of offending feminists by speaking about the unique relationship between a child and mother? They say it is okay for gays to listen to their twisted emotions, but why then do psychologists tell mothers not to follow their emotions or feel guilty when leaving their children, at a young age, to go to work? Positive motherhood emotions seem to be ignored and negative gay emotions are considered normal.

The phrase “be a man” is thrown around a lot these days, but the question is, what is a man. A man is a physical being he is not a word or a body part. A male is a volume of energy and a mass of movement. This being has physical laws that it must always follow, men are free-spirited energy, therefore they cannot stop moving, so make it a point not to stand in a man's way. Because energy needs a reflection point to be detected all men need a pattern. That is to say you can't see a man's light unless it bounces off a wall or a proximal object. Because of this all men will need territory, if he does not control a domain or a wall he cannot control the way he appears. It is a necessity for a man to control his domain and distribute therein objects that will reflect him honestly.

A young man is an energy that is just being realized. This naive force does not know its direction and is still geared by the reflections of his father's territory. This adolescent has to seek an empty place, because energy is usually controlled by objects, so to exhibit some control he must seek emptiness. He like all men will get to a point where he realizes that escape is futile and empty space does not exist in this universe. This male will mature when he realizes there is no freedom and he must stand as a comfortable slave. Because we are all destined to slavery it is good to find an honest master, this is the only way. A master that stands closer than a brother is preferable.

Because energy cannot be created or destroyed it is a danger to stand in the way of a child's energy. It may seem at first that a child is easily molded, this is an illusion based on God's choice to put a specific person in a specific place. This usually surprises many unfit parents when all of a sudden a child makes a decision to find an alternative parental figure. Childhood is not a renewable resource so it can't be taken lightly. The easiest way to raise a child is to remember that you were once young. The child's brain is just about one of the most complex and powerful things in the universe. Don't ever forget this little realized fact, children are smarter than adults.

Whoever finds an innocent and kind, and a righteous woman has found a good person, for she is priceless. A man's heart is safe in her keep, and there his heart will no longer search for fulfillment. She will do him good and not evil all the days of his life. She is willing to labor to keep him clothed. As a merchant she will bring him food from afar. She rises, early as the dawn, to nourish her household, she does not even forget the laborers. She searches for healthy fields, a field where she can plant a great vineyard. Her strength never fails and there is willingness in her arms. By night, she labors to maintain the household. She labors to mend anything that is broken. She even reaches forth to mend the hearts of the unfortunate. None in her house fear a cold wind nor can a snow cover their scarlet, bright clothing. Her husband is known at the gates, and by the community leaders. She clothes herself in pure silk, but strength and honor are her real clothing, she shall rejoice in the time to come. She opens her mouth with wisdom; and on her lips is the law of kindness. She looks after her home, and cannot stand the boredom of idleness. Her children stand up and call her blessed, so will her husband and he shall praise her. Popularity is deceitful, and beauty is vain: but a woman that fears the Lord, shall be praised.

Growth is honest and life is good. Without proliferation there is no life. But quickly growth can turn into cancer. Cancer is a thief it steals all the good things for its purposeless self. It goes nowhere but it still needs to feed. It seeks wealth and strength but it has no heavy burden to lift, nor travels for which to stockpile. If you wish to seek it is necessary to be prepared to find.

A female does not have to appear as an ingénue, nor a male a brute. The truth is in their soul, through their eyes. Males never focus, females look direct. Beauty is defined as symmetry which is a product of health. The young are born with everything they will ever need, growth is just an act of repetition, there is no evolution. Children do not copy adults, adults copy children. Children teach honesty, fear, respect, truth, justice, happiness and sadness. In a world full of sin no child is born perfect so let us only copy their good traits. Let us stay away from selfishness and apathy. It is critical that we do not cry for garbage. Don't cry over spilled milk it is more important to clean it up. We know very well that our wise parents do not know why the sky is blue or the sun manifests yellow, but it is always good to hear their opinion. How much do our parents really know? Do they even know who made their children? Or why?

As God is one, marriage is one; there is one humanity. Should God separate us, as he did forsake his son; then it must be unto death. Should we resurrect ourselves, then? How can the Spirit of Elijah prosper if there is not unity in the family? The truth is no one can be both parents, if a father attempts to be half father and half mother he will only accomplish being half a father. Sometimes negative things creep into the family, it is very important for the members to deal with negativity honestly. One man's detriment is another man's positivity. That is why we are angry at God for his treatment of us, sometimes.

The church family is a united community, there is no outsider, in church people inquire about family, relationships and friends. People invite relatives over and babysit each other's children, therefore there is no room for not answering; better yet there is no room for not questioning. It is not an option in a family community. You can't be an outsider if you want to be part of a family. Part of Christianity is to admit this is a world where many won't choose Jesus. If they hate God's definition of love or the human family they hate God. We can't change to make them happy. Look at history and stop being idealistic, be honest. The Catholics already tried this, they already tried to bring pagans idols into the church, don't you get it. Stop bringing pagans into the church and admit the truth, some people can't stand God, some people hate God and his ways. We are different than those.
