

Tempest
by Nishaun Smith

Tempest has tossed to and fro.
To me Jesus did bestow,
his strength, to halt hazard's flow.
His strength, to halt hazard's flow.

No peril can inundate,
or curve what God has made straight.
All evil God will deflate,
all evil God will deflate.

I am shielded from dismay,
safe from any sudden fray.
God will always with me stay,
God will always with me stay.

What in this world can I fear,
when God I wholly revere?
His strength, I'm compelled to share,
his strength, I'm compelled to share.

What other power can meet?
What other power can greet?
The strength I feel at God's feet,
the strength I feel at God's feet.
